Temple's bell toll and clang as many added the jingle again
Visitors come and go straining the bell to ring the pain
These are families of hope and wishes of frequent
With old mothers, wives, young daughters and kids
The mood I can see is ineffable and melancholic
Of different visitors with so many hopes and impediments.

So many great poets were there and still they are poets of Nature, adoration, compassion, fraternity and humanity
Full of blessings, labour, and gifted talents
Some seemed natural and some blessed with passion
Some were inspired and some were admired
Virtuous in poetics and core in syllabus.

Oh! What comes here from new poets of this decade?
Nothing - great like the poets of the prior decades
Not an exception I am for this; I could if
I would have been blessed with these qualities of 'Great Poets.'
